President Biden Targets Private Employers and Federal Employees and Contractors in His “Path Out of The Pandemic”

*By Amy C. Hoang, David Y. Yang, Erica L. Bakies, Rio J. Gonzalez, and Erinn L. Rigney

The authors of this article discuss President Biden’s national strategy for addressing the COVID-19 pandemic including multiple directives and actions targeted at federal, private-sector, and healthcare employers.

President Biden recently announced his comprehensive national strategy¹ for addressing the COVID-19 pandemic including multiple directives and actions targeted at federal, private-sector, and healthcare employers. The strategy includes regulatory action from the Occupational Safety and Health Administration (“OSHA”) and the Centers for Medicare & Medicaid Services (“CMS”) in addition to two executive orders, all of which include sweeping vaccination and COVID-19 safety mandates. Though the six-pronged action plan includes measures focused on:

- Vaccination efforts;
- Protecting already vaccinated individuals;
- Keeping schools safely open;
- Increasing access to testing;
- Safeguarding economic recovery; and
- Improving care for those affected by COVID-19.

This article addresses the specific directives affecting employers.

OSHA EMERGENCY TEMPORARY STANDARD FOR LARGE PRIVATE-SECTOR EMPLOYERS

As outlined in the president’s six-pronged strategy, the White House has directed OSHA to issue an emergency temporary standard (“ETS”) that would require private employers with 100 or more employees to either mandate the COVID-19 vaccine for its workforce or require weekly COVID-19 testing before reporting to a worksite. Though limited details were provided, this ETS would apply to approximately 80 million private-sector workers in the United States. As part of the ETS, covered employers would also be required to provide paid time off for time spent obtaining a COVID-19 vaccine as well as for recovery from post-vaccination symptoms.

As background, OSHA is authorized to issue emergency temporary standards under limited conditions, specifically when it has determined that workers may be in grave danger and a new standard is necessary for their protection in the workplace. After initial publication in the Federal Register, the temporary standard follows the usual rulemaking procedure for a permanent standard, though the timeline for a final ruling is within six months of publication. Finally, an ETS may be challenged in the appropriate U.S. Court of Appeals.²

OSHA most recently issued an ETS on June 10, 2021, that was limited to the healthcare industry. Prior to that, OSHA had not issued an emergency temporary standard since November 1983, and that one (related to asbestos) was invalidated by the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Fifth Circuit about four months later. It is reasonable to expect that a new ETS may also face legal challenges, not only in the regular course, but also due to a potential clash with state legislation and executive actions prohibiting certain requirements related to COVID-19 vaccinations.

EXECUTIVE ORDERS DIRECTED AT FEDERAL EXECUTIVE EMPLOYEES AND FEDERAL CONTRACTORS

The president's plan also includes an executive order³ mandating the vaccine for federal executive branch employees, with exceptions only as permitted by law. Pursuant to the executive order, the Safer Federal Workforce Task Force ("Task Force") issued guidance on September 13, 2021, with specific implementation protocols for affected agencies.

A separate executive order⁴ requires agencies to include a clause in certain federal contracts providing that contractors must comply with all workplace safety guidelines issued by the Task Force. The Task Force has since issued its guidance, which states: (1) covered employees must be vaccinated unless entitled to an exemption, (2) contractor employees and visitors to covered workplaces must comply with CDC guidelines, and (3) covered contractors must designate an individual responsible for implementing and monitoring compliance with the requirements. The Task Force guidance requires agencies to begin including the requirements when exercising options or extensions in covered contracts after October 15, 2021. Beginning November 14, 2021, agencies must include the requirements in new covered contracts. Agencies have already begun issuing class deviations that will be used to include the executive order's requirements in specific types of contracts.

The clause will be included in contracts or contract-like instruments for services, construction, leases, and concessions. It also will be included in contracts and contract-like instruments subject to the Service Contract Act or entered into with the federal government in connection with federal property or lands and related to offering services for federal employees, their dependents, or the general public. While the executive order specifically excludes certain types of federal agreements from compliance with the new requirement, such as federal grants, contracts below the simplified acquisition threshold (currently $250,000), and subcontracts solely for the provision of products, both the executive order and the Task Force guidance "strongly encourage" agencies to include the requirements into contracts that are not covered or directly addressed by the executive order.

EXPANDED CMS REGULATIONS FOR HEALTHCARE FACILITIES

The president's plan also expands on the August 18, 2021 CMS emergency regulation⁵ requiring vaccination for nursing facility staff, by requiring employees of all healthcare facilities that receive funds from Medicare and Medicaid to be fully vaccinated. The new CMS directive⁶ will expand the vaccination mandate to hospitals, home care facilities and dialysis centers in the United States and will apply to nursing home staff as well as staff in hospitals and other CMS-regulated settings, including clinical staff, individuals providing services under arrangements, volunteers, and staff who are not involved in direct patient, resident, or client care. Although some states have begun to adopt vaccination mandates for the healthcare industry, the CMS directive will develop a uniform standard across all covered entities. CMS is in the process of developing an Interim Final Rule with Comment Period that will be issued in October.

PRACTICAL CONSIDERATIONS FOR EMPLOYERS

Given the broad scope of the president's plan and the pending ETS, employers, including federal contractors, should evaluate coverage under any of the aforementioned mandates and work with counsel to develop and implement a compliance program that complies with federal, state, and local laws.

Depending upon the scope of the ETS, there may be additional issues under the National Labor Relations Act and the Fair Labor Standards Act, as well as state wage and hour laws.

Unionized employers should be cognizant of how these directives may impact obligations under collective bargaining agreements or whether a vaccine program would be a mandatory subject of bargaining.

Finally, employers must address employee and applicant requests for a reasonable accommodation under both the Americans with Disabilities Act and Title VII of the Civil Rights Act as well as applicable state law if requiring vaccination as a condition of employment.
